

CHANDOS HOUSE

LONDON W1

EILEEN HARRIS surveys the glorious revival of Chandos House, one of Robert Adam's finest London town houses. Ten years ago, it was in a derelict state, but it has now been restored for the Howard de Walden estate and the Royal Society of Medicine ➤

(Left) 1—The restored ceiling of the ground-floor parlour, using colours based on exacting research—the medallions, by Antonio Zucchi, show the Arts. (Above) 2—The distinctive Craiglith-stone façade of Chandos House ground dining room, created out in the 19th century. Newly back in use by the Royal Medicine

